

Linnea GlenMave

When asked to provide a statement about Linnea GlenMave for the Bender of Twigs, there was a moment of vertigo, followed by awe. Had it really been 25 years? Then all the remarkable stories began to appear from the memory.

Linnea was introduced to social work education at Wichita State University in 1998. She was hired as an assistant professor in the School of Social Work at Wichita State University. She provided a quiet, more confident, respectful, and knowledgeable presence. She was worthy to be surrounded by social work educators. She embodied calm, compassion, and kindness. Over the years, these characteristics have inspired all of us to try to do a respectable job, support others, and be more human.

Linnea conducted with M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin. She was a faculty member at the University of Nevada. She was a faculty member at the University of Wisconsin. She was a faculty member at the University of Wisconsin.

Linnea was always the driving force behind the School of Social Work. She shared in the successes and shared successes. Now after 25 years we all know, this is how Linnea leads.

Linnea introduced (including me) to the culture of social work education, the annual program meetings, leadership, and collaborative work. She worked collaboratively with the faculty in social work education and the promotion of the BSW program. She was the first coordinator of Master of Social Work program and reaffirmations of the BSW program. For the faculty and students in social work and now the university, Linnea is a mentor, a guidepost, an example of resolve, determination, and leadership.

However, if you really want to see Linnea light up, just ask about her sons' careers and lives. She will share stories of their success. "I want to see my sons succeed and I want to see my students succeed. I want to see my students succeed to create that possibility for all." Linnea is empowering.

Over the past 25 years, Linnea has contributed to the positive and supportive culture at Wichita State University through her leadership. Linnea is an example of leadership through empowerment.

Brien L. Bolin
Associate Dean for Student Success and Professor of Social Work
Fairmount College of Liberal Arts and Sciences